YOUR HELP IS NEEDED IN THE SOUND ROOM!

Sound Room Volunteers are needed, especially for the second service. The responsibilities for the sound room operator at each of the Sunday morning services are quite simple. The operator arrives about 10 minutes before the service begins to turn on the sanctuary lights and the sound amplification system. The operator then checks that all the microphones to be used are operating properly. This may include replacing batteries in the Pastor's wireless transmitter, but that is rare because Pastor Miller checks and replaces (as required) the batteries himself. In the sound room the operator wears headphones that allow him or her to hear the amplified output sound coming from the speakers in the sanctuary. Because there are multiple microphones on at the same time, sometimes the amplified sound originating at one microphone gets sensed by another nearby microphone and is rebroadcast adding additional volume. The cycle repeats itself very fast and results in a high-pitched squeal that fills the worship space. We call this feedback. The operator is able to hear the beginnings of feedback in the headphones and is therefore able to perform the corrective action on the control console before the squeal gets out of control. This is the most important task for the operator to perform. Without an operator present, someone with sound room knowledge must rush to the room and shut down the offending microphones. At the conclusion of the service the operator will turn off the sound room electronics and turn off the sanctuary lights, unless someone is there using the space. During the summer months when there is the outdoor service the first service sound room operator sets up the outdoor sound system. The sound equipment is returned to the church after the service by some of the folks attending that service. We presently have four sound room operators for the first service (Neil Kimerer, Tim Linden, Karl Raynar, and Jerry Lauchle), but only two for the second (Jay Aubuchon and Jeff Gonet). Please consider volunteering for the sound room; it would be nice to have a total of 8 to 12 qualified sound room operators. Jerry Lauchle (814-404-6955 or gcl1@psu.edu) is the coordinator for the sound room and will meet with interested individuals at the church to go over the operation of the equipment and the procedures during the services. This meeting will last between 15 and 30 minutes. He also has a detailed operator's manual that will be provided for the operator's reading, reference, and retention.
