LENTEN JOY

Joy is not a notion usually associated with the season of Lent. We tend to think more somber thoughts: denial, penitence, abstinence, and the like. There is that, of course, but St. Benedict tells his monks in chapter 49 of his Rule - not once but twice - that joy is essential to the Lenten season.

“One of the stumbling blocks to grasping his approach is that the term ‘joy’ is often considered synonymous with happiness. Happiness is fleeting, joy is lasting. Happiness exists in the moment when nothing to its contrary is present: no sadness, depression, darkness, difficulty. Joy, on the other hand, continues despite other emotions and external happenings.”

“Happiness is like the ripples on the surface of a stream which sparkle and glint in the sun but quickly disappear. Joy, however, is like the strong current deep down which always flows no matter the appearance of the surface of the water.”

“As Christians, joy should animate our lives. One may not be, and probably is not always happy, but one should try to be always joyful. The more cognizant I am of God’s abiding presence and action in my life, the less likely I am to be troubled and disturbed by what goes on around or even in me. Searching for this deeper reality can be a good project for Lent.”
